

CIRCOLO ITALIANO

presents

Cari Amici,

At our next event of the Cities of Italy series, Jon Snyder, Professor of Italian Studies, UC Santa Barbara will talk about Naples and the Vesuvius. Below is the synopsis of his presentation entitled:

Under the Volcano: Miracles of Naples.

For thousands of years the people of Naples have lived around the fertile slopes of Mount Vesuvius, one of the world's most dangerous volcanoes. In learning to interact with their environment, in which life and death are so tightly intertwined, Neapolitans have over the centuries developed a truly unique cultural toolkit. In this talk we will take a closer look at how the inhabitants of this beautiful city think—in terms at once magical and practical—about the precarious relationship of their civilization to the volcano slumbering for now in their midst.
